

Not knowing the state of your Health & Safety responsibilities can lead to expensive legislation.

PriorityOne software provides senior managers with total visibility of all Health and Safety responsibilities whilst ensuring staff have been made aware of their role in achieving compliancy.

Ensuring staff take their responsibilities for Health and Safety seriously in an environment of increasing legislation and potential for litigation can be a costly issue for all companies. Proving your commitments were taken seriously by showing a comprehensive audit trail can involve an expensive paper chase.

PriorityOne! is designed to integrate into existing systems and to ensure documents are communicated to staff in time for them to complete safety checks and other associated tasks. Full audit of their activities ensures senior management have complete visibility of work scheduled and its status, including any issues caused by the requirement to take corrective action.

PriorityOne! will install on any open database and can be used in conjunction with portable data capture devices such as GPRS and other wireless data systems to enable data capture in the field.
